2014-2015 VISITOR’S GUIDE
Colorado State University & Fort Collins, Colorado
Welcome to Fort Collins

Whether you are a first-time visitor to Fort Collins or come to town frequently, welcome. No matter how long you plan to stay, you are going to understand why residents find it one great place to be.

Time and again, Fort Collins has been named one of the best places to live in the United States and it's no mystery why. The city offers more than 230 days of sunshine each year, an abundance of outdoor recreation, unique cultural events and one of the highest number of restaurants and craft breweries per capita in the nation.

Fort Collins is also home to Colorado State University, one of the nation's leading research institutions. From performances at the prestigious University Center for the Arts, to leadership in clean energy and environmental science and Rams game days at Hughes Stadium and Moby Arena, CSU's energy is felt well beyond campus.

Wander through the pedestrian-friendly streets of Old Town, enjoy the newest stores and restaurants on Harmony Road, take a stroll through CSU's tree-filled campus, or head for the foothills for an outdoor adventure. Enjoy all the town has to offer and you'll see why locals still call it the "Choice City."

Fort Collins is a vibrant city of nearly 150,000 residents, the fourth largest city in Colorado, located 65 miles north of Denver. It is named for a short-lived military installation established in 1864 along the banks of the Cache la Poudre River, which flows through the city.

Fort Collins annually ranks among America’s most livable cities, appearing on top 10 lists in such magazines as Forbes and Money and scoring high in surveys of health, fitness and well-being. The city’s highly educated population, location next to the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, and vibrant economy make it a desirable place for families, recreation enthusiasts, and retirees.

THE OUTDOORS
The area has a moderate, four-season climate marked by low average humidity and an abundance of sunshine. The city has 600 acres of parks, 30,000 acres of natural areas, 29 miles of off-street hiking and biking trails, four public golf courses, a racquet center, three swimming pools, an ice rink and several community centers.

OLD TOWN
The city’s most recognizable feature is Old Town, a collection of 23 historic buildings that served as the model for Disneyland’s Main Street USA. In the heart of downtown Fort Collins, Old Town features one-of-a-kind shopping as well as more than 80 restaurants and brewpubs; it is also the hub of the city’s vibrant night life.

HISTORIC TROLLEY
The Fort Collins Municipal Railway Society operates the original trolley car west of the Mississippi River. Car 21, in the city’s fleet when trolley service ended in 1951, has been fully restored by volunteers and provides a nostalgic look at a bygone era in public transportation.

The 1.5-mile, 30-minute ride originates in City Park, travels down historic Mountain Avenue, and ends on the edge of Old Town. The trolley runs on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, noon to 5 p.m., May through September.

5 ways to make the most of your visit to Colorado State University

1. Take a picture with CAM the Ram. Our mascot, CAM the Ram, is cared for through donations to the CAM Forever fund.

2. Stroll through the Oval. You could help preserve the elm trees—some 130 years old—by making a gift to the Oval Preservation fund.

3. Visit the University Center for the Arts. See where CSU students learn about music, theater, dance, and art, and showcase their talents.

4. Stop and smell the flowers. The Annual Flower Trial Garden, located across from the University Center for the Arts, grows more than 1,000 different varieties of flowers each year.

5. Walk across the Vietnam Era Memorial Bridge. CSU is among the top military-friendly schools in the nation, according to G.I. Jobs Magazine.

Gifts to Colorado State University help make a world-class education affordable for thousands of our students each year.

CAM THE RAM
Since 1954, CAM the Ram has been CSU’s official mascot. His name stands for Colorado A&M, the University’s previous name which was changed to Colorado State University in 1957.
CAM is a domesticated Rambouillet sheep who lives on a farm and is cared for by volunteer students called the Ram Handlers. These students take CAM to football games and to events around the state. CAM and the Ram Handlers are supported by the Alumni Association.

CAM’S HISTORY
• Feb. 15, 1945, The Rocky Mountain Collegian announced the student body had voted to use the ram as the new official mascot.
• Jan. 11, 1946, the men’s pep club organization, the Senators, made a surprise appearance during halftime of the Colorado A&M – University of Denver basketball game with a domestic ram named Buck. Buck wore a blanket with “Aggie Rams” on it.
• Oct. 6, 1953, The Collegian called for a name for the mascot.
• Feb. 6, 1954, at halftime at the Colorado A&M-Wyoming basketball game, President William E. Morgan christened the ram “CAM.”

HOMECOMING AND FAMILY WEEKEND
The first Homecoming was Oct. 30, 1914, founded by then President Charles Lory as a banquet for alumni. According to the 1914 Collegian, it was a relatively small affair, and the theme was “1944”, where everyone dressed up as if it were 30 years in the future.
Homecoming became a more prominent event for students and alumni in the 1930s. The weekend festivities started with a morning assembly, a freshmen initiation to the campus, the announcement of Homecoming royalty, a parade, and an evening dance. All of this preceded the main event of the weekend, the Homecoming football game.

In the years since, Homecoming has blossomed into a much broader event that includes:
• Family Weekend activities
• Class and organizational reunions
• The 50 Year Club Luncheon
• Festival on the Oval
• The parade, which starts in Old Town and concludes on campus
• Bonfire, fireworks, and the lighting of the “A”
• 5K race
• Football tailgate and game.

8 2014-2015 Visitors Guide
Colorado State University | Fort Collins 9
CSU’s award-winning Student Recreation Center has had its share of national attention. The Rec, funded entirely by student fees, is a breathtaking combination of state-of-the-art amenities and eye-popping architectural design. Several publications have listed the CSU Student Recreation Center on their “Best Of” lists, including Men’s Health, Best Value Schools, and Best College Reviews. The glass-enclosed rock-climbing wall on the building’s eastern edge has become one of CSU’s most recognizable structures since the project was completed in 2010.

The Rec includes 165,000 square feet of space for students to experience a vast array of activities. In addition to the climbing wall, features include 24,000 square feet of cardio and weight fitness areas on two levels, basketball/volleyball courts, three fitness studios, a cycling studio, aquatic center including a 40 person spa, sauna, and steam room, and a full service massage therapy program. The Rec is utilized by approximately 3,500 students each day, who participate in fitness classes, drop-in basketball games, personal training sessions, and much more.

Intramural Sports are a big part of student life, with more than 5,500 students, or 21 percent of the student body, participating in one or more of the 48 annual events, including tube water polo, flag football, volleyball, bowling, and tennis. Events range from four-week leagues to one-day tournaments, and students can choose to play in the recreational leagues or the more competitive leagues.

For those interested in a higher level of competition, Campus Recreation’s Sport Clubs sponsor 30 teams for men and women. The University has produced some of the country’s finest club teams, with baseball and men’s and women’s lacrosse programs winning national championships in recent years. More than 1,200 students participate in CSU Sport Clubs.
CSU sponsors 16 varsity sports, with men and women competing in basketball, indoor and outdoor track, cross country, and golf. The men compete in football, while women-only sports include volleyball, tennis, swimming, soccer, and softball.

The Rams compete in the 12-team Mountain West Conference, which includes newcomers San Jose State and Utah State and other members Hawaii (football only), Nevada, Fresno State, Boise State, Air Force, New Mexico, San Diego State, and UNLV.

SPORTS FACILITIES

Hughes Stadium is the place to be on autumn Saturdays. The stadium, nestled against the foothills beneath the iconic “A” in one of the most scenic settings in college football, seats 34,000 fans. The stadium grounds have undergone a large-scale facelift that includes more than 300 trees, a plaza, access road, and fan-friendly walkways. It is also home to an 18-hole disc golf course.

Moby Arena is the home of “Moby Madness” – a frenetic fan atmosphere that gives the Rams a distinct home-court advantage. Both men’s and women’s basketball teams play their home games in Moby, as does CSU’s highly successful volleyball program, which has qualified for the NCAA Tournament 19 consecutive years.

The men’s and women’s golf programs share a home at their state-of-the-art practice facility at Harmony Club, east of Fort Collins. The facilities for the women’s tennis and track programs have been recently upgraded.

CSU also has an indoor practice facility that can be utilized by all sports teams, and an academic and training center that is part of the Moby Arena complex.

TAILGATING

Hughes Stadium is home to some of the most spirited tailgating in all of college football. With acres of on-site parking, fans arrive hours prior to kickoff to share food, play games, and cheer for their beloved Rams.

RAM TOWN

Fans of every age can get their game face on while visiting Ram Town, located on the southeast side of Hughes Stadium. Young fans can take advantage of numerous inflatable amusements, while all fans can enjoy the many food and beverage offerings. Best of all, the football team walks through Ram Town after arriving at the stadium, high-fiving fans on their way to victory!

MARCHING BAND

For more than 110 years, the CSU marching band has been making beautiful music for the Rams and their fans. The band, which includes more than 250 members representing all eight of CSU’s colleges, is renowned for its precision marching and superior musicianship.

In addition to performing at every home football game, the band has represented CSU at numerous bowl games, Denver’s annual Parade of Lights, the annual Homecoming Parade, and was the only American band invited to march in the 2013 St. Patrick’s Day Parade in Dublin.

The band’s signature maneuver is the “Trombone Suicide” in which the band’s trombone players line up and swing their instruments from side to side over the heads of their fellow players, narrowly missing each other. The routine, performed since 1995, is a big crowd-pleaser.

A self-guided tour through campus

Since CSU’s founding in 1870, campus has grown from a single building on the outskirts of Fort Collins to five campuses covering about 4,900 acres. Some 100 academic and administrative buildings occupy the 579-acre main campus. Just to the south, veterinary students gain hands-on experience at the world-renowned Veterinary Teaching Hospital; to the north, the Powerhouse Energy Campus is home to cutting-edge research in all forms of energy. CSU students also have access to incredible learning opportunities at the Equine Teaching and Research Center on the 1,705-acre Foothills Campus, the 1,434-acre agricultural campus, and the 1,177-acre Pingree Park Campus next to Rocky Mountain National Park. CSU dedicates another 3,994 acres to research centers and Colorado State Forest Service stations.

Please enjoy a stroll around the main campus with this self-guided tour, and feel free to step inside the buildings and look around.

Start at the University Welcome Center, and then walk south along Oval Drive.

1 THE UNIVERSITY WELCOME CENTER IN AMMONS HALL. This charming, classical-style building is home to the Office of Admissions. It’s also the site of presentations to visitors and the starting point for student-led tours throughout the year.

2 THE OVAL. The Oval’s elm-shaded paths provide a pleasant space for visitors and students alike to amble, study, or relax.

   During his long tenure (1909-40), President Charles A. Lory conceived of the Oval to unify the CSU campus. Ringing the Oval are the University’s most historic buildings, including – counterclockwise from Ammons Hall (1921): The Institute for Learning and Teaching, formerly the Music Building (1927), the Weber Building (1922); the Statistics Building (1910); the Wagar Building (1939); the Administration Building (1924); Johnson Hall (1935); the Gibbons Building (1903); the Occupational Therapy Building (1919); Laurel Hall (1882); Guggenheim Hall (1910); and Danforth Chapel (1954). As the college grew into a university, the campus expanded westward.

As you pass the Statistics Building, turn right at Isotope Drive and continue west past the Water Plaza, which honors CSU’s significant contribution to conserving the West’s scarce water resources. You’ll see the Lory Student Center straight ahead.

3 CHARLES A. LORY STUDENT CENTER. The hub of campus life for the last 50 years, the Lory Student Center (LSC) is undergoing re-vitalization to keep up with student needs for the future. While the center part of the building (LSC Central) is under renovation until the end of 2014, LSC North is open throughout renovation and houses the CSU bookstore, Transit Center and popular places to meet friends, eat, shop, and study. Also open throughout renovation is LSC South, home to the building’s state-of-the art Theatre.

   Stroll southeast across the plaza, the site of multicultural festivals and student activities throughout the year.

4 MORGAN LIBRARY. Dominating the plaza ahead, the Morgan Library houses more than 2 million books, journals, government documents, and other resources. The Electronic Information Center provides instructional labs, specialized assistive technology, public computer terminals, laptops that students can borrow, and the newest addition, the 24-hour study cube.

   At this point, you have a choice. You can return to the Oval and the University Welcome Center by walking east between the north and south wings of the Clark Building, crossing the Monfort Quadrangle, and turning left along East Drive. Or you can proceed to the West Lawn for a look at student recreational, athletic, health, and residential facilities. To continue your tour, walk northwest from the Morgan Library to the west side of the Lory Student Center and pick up the path that leads you beside the Lagoon.

THE LAGOON. Many students find this a pleasant place to linger and enjoy the view of the foothills; it is also the site of the University’s free summer Lagoon Concert series. As you cross the Vietnam Memorial Bridge, think of Old Main, the first academic building on campus. After it burned down in 1970, some of its bricks were incorporated into the bridge.

SCOTT BIOMEDICAL ENGINEERING BUILDING. If you continue to follow the path across Plum Street, you will first pass Spruce Hall, the headquarters for the CSU Police Department, then come to the newest academic building on campus. The Suzanne and Walter Scott, Jr. Biomedical Engineering Building opened in September 2013 and within its 122,000 square feet are classrooms, teaching labs, and high-tech research space for about 40 faculty researchers in a variety of disciplines. It was built to LEED Gold standards, with significant input from engineering students.

WEST LAWN AND RECREATION CENTER

Turn back toward the main campus and follow Meridian Avenue back to Plum Street. As you face west, lift your gaze to the big, white “A” perched on one of the foothills. Created during our A&M days, the 210-foot-by-450-foot letter stands for “Aggies.” We became Colorado State University in 1957, and the Colorado Historical Society has since designated the spot a historical property. At the base of the “A”, two miles west of the main campus, sits Sonny Lubick Field at Hughes Stadium, home of the CSU Rams football team. Just ahead of you is the Student Recreation Center, and a few steps farther west is Moby Arena.

STUDENT RECREATION CENTER. In this recently renovated and expanded facility, students can take advantage of the climbing wall and bouldering cave, extensive weight and cardio exercise equipment, aquatic center, basketball/volleyball courts, fitness studios, and an indoor track, as well as outdoor courts for basketball, volleyball, and inline hockey. Personal trainers are available to help build an individualized fitness regimen.

MOBY ARENA. Named for its resemblance to Herman Melville’s infamous whale, Moby is home to Rams volleyball, men’s and women’s basketball, and the Department of Health and Exercise Science. Connected to the arena on the west is the Thurman F. “Fum” McGraw Athletic Center, headquarters for the Department of Athletics. It includes facilities for weight training and sports medicine, along with a computer center and the ticket office.
Pick up the path south of Moby and the recreation center and follow it southeast to the intersection of Meridian Avenue and University Avenue to the Hartshorn Building.

CSU Health Network. The health service is fully staffed and equipped to provide comprehensive outpatient care and counseling for students. Southwest of Hartshorn you’ll see a collection of residence halls, which are home to several of CSU’s 14 Residential Learning Communities. Residential Learning Communities allow students to live in an enriched learning environment with others who share similar academic majors or personal interests.

Academic Village. The University’s newest residential area is home to the Engineering and Honors Residential Learning Communities. It also features the award-winning Ram’s Horn Dining Center.
ARTS AND SCIENCES
Go to Pitkin Street just south of the Academic Village and walk east past the Visual Arts Building. You’ll notice the soaring arc of a sculpture anchoring a complex of facilities dedicated to the natural sciences. You’re looking at “Newton’s Corner,” which embodies Sir Isaac Newton’s observations on time, space, and motion. (Due south one block is the 835-space Lake Street Parking Garage, which also includes retail and office space.) Continue east on Pitkin until you come to College Avenue. Turn right at the Alumni Center and proceed south until you come to the College Avenue pedestrian underpass. Cross under the street and emerge in the Annual Flower Trial Gardens, virtually in the front yard of the University Center for the Arts.

ANNUAL FLOWER TRIAL GARDENS. Stroll through fragrant gardens where the CSU Department of Horticulture tests more than 1,000 annual bedding plants under rugged Rocky Mountain conditions. Since 2007, new perennial varieties have also been tested for hardiness as well as beauty. All this and a gorgeous view.

UNIVERSITY CENTER FOR THE ARTS. This world-class facility consolidates music, dance, and theatre programs into one exquisite performance and learning venue, along with the new University Art Museum and the Avenir Museum of Design and Merchandising. Students approved a construction fee, which, along with private donations, covered the entire cost of renovating the former Fort Collins High School. The result is a regional cultural resource that includes concert and recital halls, theaters, museums and galleries, classrooms, offices, and research facilities.

Other local campuses
FOOTHILLS CAMPUS
Located about three miles west of CSU’s main campus, the Foothills Campus is home to programs in atmospheric science and equine science, and includes numerous labs and facilities where some of the University’s most important research takes place.

VETERINARY TEACHING HOSPITAL
The Vet Teaching Hospital, at 300 W. Drake Road south of campus, is considered one of the finest veterinary hospitals in the world. It offers both small and large animal care, and houses the renowned Flint Animal Cancer Center.

POWERHOUSE ENERGY CAMPUS
The Powerhouse Energy Campus is north of campus on the other side of Old Town Fort Collins at 430 N. College Ave. The Powerhouse contains the remodeled Engines and Energy Conversion Lab as well as 65,000 square feet of new office and research space for CSU’s cutting-edge research in all forms of energy. The new facility is itself a testbed for energy-efficient features, such as specialized LED lighting, a rooftop solar array, and a cooling system that does not use traditional air conditioning.

PINGREE PARK
Located 50 miles west of Fort Collins, the 1,177-acre campus has been a field site for CSU’s natural resources students since 1916. At 9,000 feet above sea level the breathtaking area is adjacent to Rocky Mountain National Park.

Be Safe on Campus
The Colorado State University Police Department is a fully functional law enforcement agency composed of state-certified police officers, including a Patrol Division with officers on foot, bikes, motorcycles, and in squad cars, and an Investigations Unit with plainclothes detectives.

The main Fort Collins campus encompasses about one square mile, an area that is patrolled by police officers 24 hours a day throughout the year. All buildings on campus are routinely patrolled by foot, bicycle, motorcycle, and car, and University officers routinely patrol inside residential halls to achieve our community policing goals.

All 911 calls generated on campus go directly to the CSU Police 911 Center. CSU Police generally respond to an emergency call on the main campus within a couple of minutes.

The Foothills Campus west of campus receives additional security from trained security officers through our federal government partners. CSUPD works cooperatively with Fort Collins Police Services and Larimer County Sheriff’s Office.

All exterior doors in the residence hall system are monitored for proper position and alarmed; all external fire tower doors are designated “Emergency Exit Only” and will activate an alarm if opened. In addition, all doors to the residential living areas have access control. All community bathrooms have electronic key pad entry. Finally, front desk coverage in all residence halls is 24 hours a day, 7 days a week with on-site security patrols.

BUS SERVICE
All CSU students and employees receive a free transit pass for the Transfort bus system. Transfort provides our students the opportunity to attend college without the economic burden of a personal vehicle. With a multitude of stops close to student living areas, Old Town, grocery stores, restaurants, and recreation activities are minutes away. The CSU Transit Center is the first LEED Gold Certified building in Fort Collins. It is located at the north end of the Lory Student Center on the CSU campus and includes benches, schedule boards, info center, and convenience store. Here you can catch the free campus shuttle – Around the Horn (starting August 2014).

This year, CSU welcomes Fort Collins' new 7-mile bus rapid transit system called MAX. MAX will serve campus daily until 12:30 a.m. MAX connects students to rental housing opportunities across Fort Collins.

Fort Collins is home to more than 50 city parks fcgov.com/parks

Located at the foot of the Rocky Mountains, Fort Collins offers not only breathtaking scenic views, but also a variety of recreational activities that would appeal to any outdoor enthusiast. With Lory State Park, Horsetooth Reservoir and Mountain Park only minutes from the highway, it won’t take long to get away.

A PERFECT GETAWAY

Horsetooth Reservoir and Mountain Park
(970) 679-4554
www.horsetoothreservoir.com/

A 6.5 mile long reservoir, surrounded by over 2,000 acres of public land, more than 25 miles of non-motorized recreational trails. Lakeside camping at the South Bay Campground, boating, wake boarding/water skiing, fishing, swimming, hiking, and bicycling.

Lory State Park
(970) 493-1623
parks.state.co.us/parks/lorry

Eleven miles from Fort Collins, you can explore wide open scenic terrain in an adventurous landscape. 26 miles of scenic trails for hiking, mountain biking, horsemanship riding, Rock climbing and bouldering routes, back country camping, and picnicking. Entrance Fee: $7 per vehicle, $3 per person Hours: 5 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Cache La Poudre River

French for “hide the powder” the Cache La Poudre begins in Rocky Mountain National Park and flows north and east along the Front Range and meanders through Fort Collins. It is Colorado’s only designated “Wild and Scenic” river and is a popular destination for fly fishing, whitewater rafting, tubing, kayaking, picnicking and hiking.

The Cache La Poudre-North Park Scenic Byway is recognized as one of Colorado’s premier scenic highways. To get there take U.S. Highway 287 north to Colorado Highway 14.

High altitude – be aware

Fort Collins sits 4,984 feet above sea level, so visitors should take some precautions. There’s less oxygen at high altitude, so take it easy and remember to drink plenty of water. If you’re going to be outdoors for any length of time, particularly during the spring and summer months, remember to apply sunscreen. Skin burns easily in the thin air.

Bicycling

Love bikes? Great news, you’re going to love Fort Collins’ bike culture. The city has been named a Platinum-level Bicycle Friendly Community by the League of American Bicyclists. With over 30 miles of paved bike trails within the Fort Collins city limits, most of which are connected to each other, it’s possible to bike just about anywhere without ever hitting busy streets.

In Town Trails

FOSSIL CREEK TRAIL
The Fossil Creek Trail runs for more than five miles, between the Spring Creek Trail and Fossil Creek Reservoir. This trail is perfect if you are hoping to spot some wildlife during your visit as the trail cuts through the Cathy Fromme Prairie Natural Area.

MASON TRAIL
This trail is best if you are looking for a safe way to navigate Fort Collins on your bike without encountering motorists. Running through the CSU campus and almost four miles from Prospect Road to south of Harmony Road, this is a great option for those who prefer to bike instead of drive.

POUDRE TRAIL
This scenic trail stretches for more than 10 miles from Overland Trail at Lyons Park to East Drake Road at the Environmental Learning Center along the Cache la Poudre River. This trail is expected to expand toward I-25 over the next several years.

POWER TRAIL
The Power Trail begins at Edora Park in east Fort Collins and continues south to Golden Meadows Park, north of Harmony Road for more than three miles. This scenic trail runs along the historic Union Pacific Railroad.

SPRING CREEK TRAIL
This trail stretches from west Drake Road and meanders along the edge of Spring Creek for more than six miles until its confluence with Cache la Poudre River, at which point the Spring Creek Trail connects with the Power Trail.

Bike the city
Fort Collins is home to more than 200 total miles of paved and unpaved bike lanes, trails and paths. Perfect for the entire family and any level of rider. Didn’t bring a bike? Residents, students and visitors can borrow a bike from the Fort Collins Bike Library. A variety of bicycles plus tandems, trailers and tag-a-longs for children are available at no charge. A credit card and valid I.D. are required for the service.

The Fossil Creek Trails runs, for more than five miles, between the Spring Creek Trail and Fossil Creek Reservoir. This trail is perfect if you are hoping to spot some wildlife during your visit as the trail cuts through the Cathy Fromme Prairie Natural Area.

MASON TRAIL
This trail is best if you are looking for a safe way to navigate Fort Collins on your bike without encountering motorists. Running through the CSU campus and almost four miles from Prospect Road to south of Harmony Road, this is a great option for those who prefer to bike instead of drive.

POUDRE TRAIL
This scenic trail stretches for more than 10 miles from Overland Trail at Lyons Park to East Drake Road at the Environmental Learning Center along the Cache la Poudre River. This trail is expected to expand toward I-25 over the next several years.

POWER TRAIL
The Power Trail begins at Edora Park in east Fort Collins and continues south to Golden Meadows Park, north of Harmony Road for more than three miles. This scenic trail runs along the historic Union Pacific Railroad.

SPRING CREEK TRAIL
This trail stretches from west Drake Road and meanders along the edge of Spring Creek for more than six miles until its confluence with Cache la Poudre River, at which point the Spring Creek Trail connects with the Power Trail.

The Arts

Fort Collins’ thriving arts community is easy to find in its many galleries, theaters and concert halls. Be sure to walk through Old Town the first Friday of each month, when art museums and galleries stay open late to explore the community’s permanent collections as well as the latest work by local artists.

FIRST FRIDAY
Sponsored by the Downtown Fort Collins Arts District and local businesses and organizations, First Friday is one of the city’s most popular year-round events. Your chance to enjoy visual arts won’t end there, however. University and community museums, galleries and co-ops all welcome visitors daily.

FORT COLLINS ART
The Fort Collins Museum of Art and Art Center of Fort Collins offer an on-going diverse series of exhibitions, community events and educational programs for children and adults.

LIVE PERFORMANCES
The city also boasts a wide selection of live performances. The newly rebuilt Lincoln Center, with its two performance spaces, offers lectures, dance recitals, symphonies, operas, Broadway musicals and theater.

UNIVERSITY CENTER FOR THE ARTS
Just east of the main campus, CSU’s University Center for the Arts boasts similar range with a mix of student and professional productions of music, dance and theater that range from the classical to avant garde. Many UCA graduates continue their careers at local repertories, which perform everything from whimsical dinner theater to Pulitzer Prize-winning plays to Shakespeare.

OLD TOWN
Shopping in Old Town is an adventure fueled by the imaginations and interests of the local owners who occupy its Victorian-era buildings. On College Avenue, you can find fashion from eco-friendly to funky to chic, exotic spices and oils, natural and organic foods, rocks and minerals, toys, imports from the all corners of the globe, handcrafted furniture and home decor, speciality kitchen items, yard and gardening tools, hiking and biking gear, even newspapers and magazines from around the world. You will need a break, so drop into one of the coffee or dessert shops sprinkled throughout the district.

FOOTHILLS MALL
A longtime shopping center of the community, Foothills Mall is currently under redevelopment.

Foothills Mall is open during construction. Two major department stores, Macy’s and Sears, and several specialty shops are open for business. Located at Foothills Parkway and College Avenue.

FRONT RANGE VILLAGE
This outdoor mall is relatively new to Fort Collins. Located on Harmony Road, you can find everything from food to apparel and even the Council Tree branch of the Fort Collins public library. With a thorough mix of department stores, like Super Target, as well as more local features like Mary’s Mountain Cookies and Pablo’s Pizza, Front Range Village has something for everyone. And with the contemporary main street feel and the small dog park this is truly a place where the whole family will feel comfortable.

From dusk to well after midnight, Fort Collins’ streets are lined with a diverse crowd of night owls. The city comes alive, enticing visitors and locals to gather around the good food and drinks, live music, art, and the city’s street life.

For family-friendly fun, the south and midtown areas offer the best of local and national restaurants and recreation, such as bowling, arcades and movie theaters.

While it is also the live music district, Old Town offers some of the best laid back nightlife in town as well. Martini, tapas, and craft beer bars, which often include jazz or acoustic music, local fine arts theaters and late-night coffee shops provide plenty of nice options for a relaxing evening out.

But make no mistake, Fort Collins can rock. During the spring and summer, you’ll catch the nightlife vibe everywhere in Old Town. Beet Street’s “Streetmosphere” keeps the summer humming with dozens of local musicians performing classical, jazz, country, bluegrass, outdoors as well as “dancers, actors, comedians, jugglers, magicians, painters, weavers, and even a cowboy poet.” Those smaller events are a nice addition to what seems like an never-ending list of outdoor concerts and festivals, including Bohemian Nights, a late-summer mashup of 80 local and national music acts playing across the downtown area over three nights — all for free.

But it doesn’t end there, because Fort Collins is considered Colorado’s new hotspot for live music year-round. Venues in and around Old Town feature everything from country and acoustic to dubstep, hiphop and indie rock. Many local bars, cafés and restaurants also showcase local talent, including musicians, poets, and comedians.

From dusk to well after midnight, Fort Collins' streets are lined with a diverse crowd of night owls. The city comes alive, enticing visitors and locals to gather around the good food and drinks, live music, art, and the city's street life.

For family-friendly fun, the south and midtown areas offer the best of local and national restaurants and recreation, such as bowling, arcades and movie theaters.

While it is also the live music district, Old Town offers some of the best laid back nightlife in town as well. Martini, tapas, and craft beer bars, which often include jazz or acoustic music, local fine arts theaters and late-night coffee shops provide plenty of nice options for a relaxing evening out.

But make no mistake, Fort Collins can rock. During the spring and summer, you'll catch the nightlife vibe everywhere in Old Town. Beet Street's "Streetmosphere" keeps the summer humming with dozens of local musicians performing classical, jazz, country, bluegrass, outdoors as well as "dancers, actors, comedians, jugglers, magicians, painters, weavers, and even a cowboy poet." Those smaller events are a nice addition to what seems like an never-ending list of outdoor concerts and festivals, including Bohemian Nights, a late-summer mashup of 80 local and national music acts playing across the downtown area over three nights - all for free.

But it doesn't end there, because Fort Collins is considered Colorado's new hotspot for live music year-round. Venues in and around Old Town feature everything from country and acoustic to dubstep, hiphop and indie rock. Many local bars, cafes and restaurants also showcase local talent, including musicians, poets, and comedians.
HOUSING

Fall in love with FoCo

If you’ve fallen in love with Fort Collins, you’re not alone. The city is annually ranked as one of the best places to live in America by a wide variety of publications.

So what’s next? It’s finding that perfect place to live, whether buying a home for your family or a rental as you pursue your college degree. Either way, there are plenty of options.

The housing market in Fort Collins is robust. Nearly 450 homes were sold in the city in the first three months of 2014, with a median price of $248,000. The biggest areas of new construction continue to be south and east of the city center as the city continues to grow at nearly a 2 percent clip annually.

The rental market is also active, with a host of new complexes geared specifically to students boasting a wide variety of amenities, from spas to health club facilities to swimming pools. Many of the new complexes are near the new MAX transit centers, a boon for those who want to keep their transportation costs at a minimum.

The rental market also covers a wide range of prices. According to national real estate websites, the average rental price in Fort Collins is approximately $750 per bedroom near campus and downtown, but less expensive options are available for those willing to live a little farther from campus.
