College Chair – $1.5 million
The Wagonhound Land and Livestock Chair in Equine Sciences
Established in 2011, the Wagonhound Land and Livestock Chair in Equine Sciences provides funding to enhance the excellence of Colorado State University’s Equine Sciences Program in the College of Agricultural Sciences. This chair focuses on the education, research, and service missions of CSU’s world-renowned equine program. Earnings from the endowed fund support cutting-edge research and fundamentally important education and hands-on learning for equine students, so they are ideally prepared to work in the blossoming equine industry. Dr. Jerry Black, director of undergraduate programs in Equine Sciences, holds the chair.
