Chairs and Professorships

Presidential Chair – $6 million
The Stephen J. Withrow Presidential Chair in Oncology
CVMBS is in the midst of a campaign to establish the Stephen J. Withrow Presidential Chair in Oncology. The campaign has been kicked off with private gifts of more than $4 million, and the campaign will raise the remainder necessary to fully endow the chair.

University Chairs – $3 million
The Shipley University Chair in Comparative Oncology
Established in 2010, this chair will provide funding for specialized research related to natural cures and treatments for cancer. Without this chair, there would be no funding available to investigate the value of certain foods and diets understood to have a beneficial effect on cancer in animals and humans.
The Iron Rose Ranch University Chair in Equine Reproduction
The Iron Rose Ranch established a University Chair in equine reproduction in 2007. The chair holder, Dr. Pat McCue, directs the College’s world-renowned efforts in equine reproductive performance. The Equine Reproduction Laboratory is a core component of the College’s overall program in veterinary medicine. Support from this fund allows the program to have an additional DVM, PhD resident who specializes in equine-assisted reproduction activities, which makes the process available to more horse owners.

The Abigail K. Kawananakoa University Chair in Equine Musculoskeletal Integrative Therapies
Established in 2007, this chair allows the college to build its international reputation in equine orthopaedics related to noninvasive integrative therapies for horses. Dr. Kevin Haussler is a DVM as well as a Doctor of Chiropractic with a PhD in spinal anatomy of the horse. His specialty, supported by funding from the chair, allows him to explore the scientific basis for physical manipulative therapies for the horse. Dr. Haussler has a world-renowned reputation and, because of this chair, has the ability at CSU to pursue his research.

College Chair – $1.5 million
The Kenneth and Virginia Atkinson Chair in Musculoskeletal Imaging
Established in 2010, this chair will provide funding for specialized research related to natural cures and treatments for cancer. Without this chair, there would be no funding available to investigate the value of certain foods and diets understood to have a beneficial effect on cancer in animals and humans.
